MATTHIEU LIVRIERI

About my work

It has always felt important for me to question people, communication, memory and reality. How do we become who we are through the relationships we build and the objects we keep around us?

My work is centered around painting and drawing. I depict scenes from everyday life, the people close to me, and the spaces I move through. I try to hold onto encounters, to capture how relationships evolve, along with the emotions and connections that come with them.

Through painting and drawing, I bring these moments back a second time. I place them into compositions where objects, spaces, patterns and colors come together. These images become fragments of memory, something suspended, almost out of time.

The figures I paint often appear alone, placed in quiet and enclosed spaces. These interiors are not just backgrounds, they become extensions of the people themselves. They reveal something intimate while also containing it. I sometimes distort space and bodies to express a tension between what is internal and what is visible.
